Exsys Selector is designed for rapid development of product selection and probabilistic identification applications. It is designed with the application architecture for these types of problems already built in. All the developer has to do is provide product details, making it very easy to learn and update. A Servlet Runtime License, and bundled Exsys Corvid® packages, training and consulting are available.

We provide a range of services based around Exsys products to enhance application quality and speed the development process in any Knowledge Automation Expert System project. From prototyping and system architecture to design and end user interface development, Exsys's experienced professional service groups are committed to ensuring your application's success.

Contact your Exsys sales specialist representative for details.

Additional Offer: Exsys Selector Licenses (single-developer, single computer) are available for only $999. each with purchase of full Exsys Corvid development licenses at standard price.

*Prices are in $US. Licensing subject to provisions.
